ESCAIDE 2022 updates

One week left to submit abstracts!

There is still time to submit abstracts to ESCAIDE 2022 (closes Wednesday 18 May (23:59)), for an opportunity to share new findings with a large audience of public health professionals in Europe and around the world. A late-breaker abstract call will be open from 24 August–12 September for abstracts reporting data that was unavailable before the deadline for submission in the general call for abstracts for ESCAIDE.

Plenary sessions at ESCAIDE 2022

The Scientific Committee have developed sessions for ESCAIDE 2022 on pertinent topics in the field that they felt should be addressed at this year's conference, inviting world class speakers to share their experience, discuss and debate. The five sessions will focus on ethics in pandemic control, refugee health, managing infodemics, and the impact of the COVID-19 pandemic on advances in vaccination and surveillance. Over the next editions of the ESCAIDE newsletter, we will introduce the themes of the plenaries in more depth, giving you a taste of what is to come.

ESCAIDE returns to Stockholm, Münchenbryggeriet

For our first hybrid event, we are keeping things familiar: the physical part of ESCAIDE will return to Münchenbryggeriet, a major historical building in Stockholm, in a fantastic location on the island of Södermalm, with views across the water and city. The Swapcard platform will again be used for the online experience. It will also serve to truly make the conference hybrid by linking the two experiences, as it will be accessible to in-person attendees through an app (and in browsers), allowing both audiences to connect with each other. More information about accommodation will be announced.

Free registration

Registration to this first hybrid edition of ESCAIDE will be free for both online and in-person attendance. We will be making announcements soon about the staggered phases of physical and virtual registrations.
